Homemaking Suggestions

Here's a hint for the woman who dreads to clean her machine for fear she won't get all the screws and bolts and tiny parts back in their proper place. Lay each part on the sticky side of a length of drafting or adhesive tape as you remove it. When cleaned, put back in their proper place. Then the job of reassemblin will be easier.

Individuals using textile paint want to be as economical with it as possible. Save the tops of soft drinks. These can be used to hold small amounts of different colors. They can be disposed of easily or replaced without difficulty.

Why not start a recipe file of your friends' favorite recipes. Your family will enjoy your friends' goodies and you will also have on hand some wonderful ideas as to what to serve guests when they visit you.

Life Story of Thomas F. Gray: Sailor. Fireman, Cowboy, Engineer, Traveler nation's warships were still made of wood and powered by sail.

Heading the injuction, "Go West, young man," he went to Fremont County, Wyoming, in the 1890's. There he worked with cattle and other livestock. In 1898, accompanied by Ed and "Stub" Farlow, he helped in the last cattle drive from Lander to Casper before the railroad started building west of the city.

Arriving in Casper with the 700 cattle at the end of a 30-day drive, Mr. Gray boarded a train and returned to New York to visit relatives. The visit lengthened, and he attended Tafts College, in Massachussets, graduaning in 1906 as a civil engineer.

Immediately after graduation, he returned to Lander and entered the surveying business. It was while in Lander that he met and married Miss Harriet Baker, whose father was connected with the railroad. In 1913 he separated from his wife and returned to the East Coast, where he worked as a civil engineer from Maine to Virginia. At one time he served for three years with the New York Fire Department.

About the time of the first World War he came to Appomattox, Va., and acquired a small acreage near the historic site of the peace made April 9, 1865 between Generals Lee and Grant. He built a ranch type bungalow, and in the early 1930's added to it and at one time conducted a business at the road entrance to the North Carolina Confederate Monument. This he called "The Last Shot," and many tourists stopped there. At the time the Federal government was acquiring land for the present Appomattox Battlefield National Historical Monument, Mr. Gray sold his holdings in Appomattox.

Retiring many years ago, Mr. Gray spent his remaining years touring about America, visiting old friends and interesting places. He drove a panel truck, familiar here because of the painting on its sides here several years. One one side of the truck was painted, under the caption, "The First Shot," a picture of the firing on Fort Sumner, S. C. On the opposite side, under the caption, "The Last Shot," was the peace-bringing scene of the end of the war at Appomattox. Mr. Gray drove this panel truck all over the nation: it did much to advertise Appomattox.

He died February 13, ending a fabulous career: student, sailor, cowboy, engineer, fireman, business man and traveler. Rosary services were held Friday night, February 15, Lander, Wyoming. The body was shipped to Croton, New York, for funeral services and burial. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Katherine Dollard. He is also survived by three grandchildren, Richard G., Edward A. and Dorene Patti Dollard; a neice, Mrs. Gertrude Scheele, of Framington, Mass., and a nephew, Thomas Higgins, of Danville, New Jersey.

Localities Spent More For Schools In '51

The cities and counties of Virginia spent $3,010,942 more out of local funds for public education during 1950-51 than they did during 1949-50, according to an Analysis of Relative Local Ability and Effort - 1950-51, made by the Virginia Education Association. Out of local funds a total of $43,384,687 was spent in 1950-51, as compared with $40,373,745 during 1949-50. This increase is for operation only. It does not include debt service and capital outlay.

Other highlights of the study are:

1. The county with the greatest wealth has approximately 7 times as much wealth per child taxable for school purposes as the poorest county.

2. The wealthiest city has approximately 6 times the tax ability of the poorest city.

3. Average county ability is approximately half that of the average city ability.

4. During 1950-51, the counties increased the amount spent locally by 9 per cent, whereas the increase in the cities was 5 per cent.

5. The true school tax rate in the counties was up 9 per cent in 1950-51, whereas in the cities the increase was 6 per cent.

6. Arlington County spent nearly 8 times as much per child from local funds as did Lee County.

While the counties are increasing their efforts to support public education, on the whole they still lag behind the cities in the degree of local effort. It should be remembered, too, that cities spend large sums of money on other governmental activities which are of relatively little or of no expense to the counties. When the total tax burden is taken into account, therefore, the tax effort of the cities is greater than that of most of the counties.

Out of local funds during 1950-51 the counties put up $61.31 per child in average daily attendance, an increase of 7 per cent over the previous year, whereas in the cities an average of $133.16 was spent per child out of local funds. The average for counties and cities was $79.20.

The range in local funds spent per child in the counties was from $22.55 in Lee County to $166.02 in Arlington. The average for the counties per child was $61.31. In the cities the range in expenditures from local funds was from $48.80 in Buena Vista to $224.38 in Harrisonburg. The average for the cities was $133.16.

The range in per pupil expenditure in the counties, therefore, is much greater than that in the cities. For example, Arlington put up nearly 8 times as much as Lee County, while Harrisonburg put up only 4 1-2 times as much as Buena Vista.

Oakville 4-H Club Meeting

The Oakville 4-H Club met Wednesday, February 13 at 10:45, at the school. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mary Robertson.After an interesting program, Mrs. B. G. Anderson met with the girls for a demonstration on how to wash sweaters. Plans were made for a biscuit and biscuit variation demonstration Feb. 22.

Mr. Reginald Speir met with the boys and worked on their project books.

The demonstration on biscuits on February 22, was very successful, and the girls are enjoying making biscuits at home.

National 4-H Week In March

By Reginald Speir,
Assistant County Agent

March 1 through 9 is National 4-H Club Week. The theme for the week is "serving as loyal citizens through 4-H."

The biggest voluntary rural youth organization in the world, the 4-H Club, is free to everyone who is between the ages of 10 and 21 years. Sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service, this world-wide youth club is actually composed of thousands of 4-H Clubs like the one in your community. Each one is in itself symbolic of democratic principles of life based on true American belief in freedom—a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

Led by Extension personnel and voluntary local leaders, these young people meet regularly, elect their own president, vice-president, secretary and other officers and committees. The meetings are then conducted with the president presiding.

There are over 56,000 members in Virginia and approximately 400 in Appomattox County.

There are nine clubs in Appomattox County observing National 4-H Club Week. These nine clubs meet once a month in the schools during the school year. There they are given timely instruction in agricultural and home-making projects. But the real work is done in the home, where each member has at least one main interest. Perhaps it's improving the lighting, or learning to sew, or raising a pig or calf, or safety. Whatever the project, they learn by doing, and as they learn, improve on what has been done.

There was a called meeting of the Town Council Monday night, to discuss securing a new town clerk and manager to succeed E. Carrol Smith, who has resigned, effective as of March 31. No action was taken by the town.

Appomattox escaped heavy snows over the week-end, as other parts of the Old Dominion were hard hit. There was snow here; twice, but not too much.

Coach Frank Moseley, of V. P. I. was here last night to address a meeting of the A. H. S. Monogram Club.

Calvin Robinson, Times-Virginian editor, will speak tonight at the meeting of the Vera P.-T. A.

Miss Edna Gregory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth C. Gregory, who also is a member of the Farm Show Talent Contest, to Natural Bridge on March 3rd. They will entertain with a talent show during the bankers' conference to be held at that time. Edna also has a date to appear in a talent contest March 21 at Concord and another later in March in Rustburg.

Appomattox Dairy Farming Profitable

By R. B. Hudgins, County Agent

Dairy producers of Appomattox County are fortunate not only in having land especially adapted to good pastures, legume crops, and grain, but they are in a unique position relative to good markets at fair prices for Grade A and manufactured milk.

There are eighteen Grade A producers shipping milk to Newport News, one to Lynchburg, and one local distributor, milking daily approximately 445 good producing cows. The distributors on the Newport News market are begging for more milk at a good price. The Washington milkshed will take every pound of milk this county can produce and is begging for production.

There are approximately 200 milk producers in Appomattox County delivering milk to Coble's milk plant located in this town. The local plant is now being remodeled for greater efficiency. This market also is anxious for more milk.

In a few months there will be several new producers of both Grade A and manufactured milk. Plans are now being worked out to build new barns and five or six permanent silos will be constructed hefore next fall. This is indeed a healthy trend and many more of our farmers should be planning to take advantage of the splendid markets for dairy products.

The county agent's office is prepared to take care of your needs on construction of all kinds of farm buildings, particularly dairy and beef cattle barns, and also swine and sheep buildings. If those interested will call at the office, the county agent will be glad to discuss with you your problems and visit your farm for further study.

Dairying for the long pull is in a very strong position. Many farmers with a small acreage and extra family labor should buy more dairy cows. Higher feed and labor costs will discourage dairymen further north and will leave a stronger milk market for the south.

Dairy farming is a stable form of agriculture. It is highly important for the health and well-being of humans that they have an abundant supply of milk and other dairy products. This is because the great nutritive merits of milk put it in a class by itself as a human food. Fortunately, dairy cows not only excel in the nutritive value of the

Dr. Podneicks To Speak Here

It has been announced that the general public will be given the opportunity of hearing Dr. Nina Podneicks speak on "Personal Experiences Behind the Iron Curtain," at an open meeting at the local school auditorium at 8:00 P. M., Thursday, March 6. Dr. Podneiks was in Latvia before and during World War II and in Germany after the war as a Displaced Person.

Judge Joel W. Flood, who has arranged this occasion, and who will preside, further announced that the Carol Choir of Liberty Baptist Church will render musical selections, under the direction of Mrs. David Goode.

Dr. Podneicks has been in Appomattox for some months conducting a dental clinic at A. H. S. and the county schools. She spoke recently at a ladies night meeting of the Appomattox Lions Club; speaks on next Wednesday before the Dental Society in Lynchburg, and plans to speak in Farmville at an early date. There will be no admission charge at this occasion next Thursday and the public is urged to come and hear a first-hand account of current conditions overseas.

Blood Reports Encouraging For Visit Here

Encouraging reports are being made by the Roanoke Blood Center concerning an increase in the amount of blood being donated by the Red Cross Blood Program Centers composing the Roanoke Center. A total of 775 more pints of blood were collected in January than in the preceding month of December. The county chapters of Montgomery, Campbell and Bedford collected in January more than the quota of 150 pints of blood for each chapter.

The Lions Club of Appomattox is sponsoring the next Bloodmobile visit to Appomattox, Saturday, April 19. It is confidently expected that the club will succeed in securing 165 signed donors and that the Pamplin organization headed by Rev. W. M. Black and Rev. T. L. Simpson, will secure at least 60 signed donors, thus guaranteeing a take of 150 pints of tragically needed blood for local transfusions and for the wounded in Korea.

—Rev. R. Carl Maxwell, Appomattox County Red Cross Blood Program Chairman.

Red Cross Drive Starts Saturday

The 1952 Red Cross campaign workers will begin the fund drive March 1st, headed by B. Carry Harvey, fund chairman, and with Miss Mary Ann Wheeler as treasurer. Goal of the drive for the Appomattox Chapter is $2,195.00. Of this total, $695 will go to the National Red Cross Fund and the remaining $1,500 will stay in Appomattox County for local use.

Assistants in the drive will be: Fred Smith and H. A. Gurney, business section representatives; Mrs. Etta Ingw, Virginia Novelty Co, representative; Mrs. Mozella Price, Negro representative;

Pamplin: Mrs. Richard Williams, and Rev. W. M. Black;

Spout Spring: Mrs. George Collins;

Oakville: Mrs. O. W. Martin, Jr.; Vera: Mrs. Marjorie S. Covington.

Some of the accomplishments of the past year in Appomattox County by the Red Cross should be made known. Funds for the training of four instructors in First Aid were made available. In the immediate future these instructors will begin classes for the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts in Junior First Aid. Money has been used to purchase First Aid equipment that is available for emergencies.

The Blood Program has made heavy demands on the funds on hand and the need is great for this program to be continued. Blood is needed in Korea and at home. If the collection of blood is to continue in this area,funds must be made available for the 1952 program.

Services to veterans, through the Home Service Department, have multiplied during the past year, since the fighting in Korea began. These funds will be in constant demand, and no doubt the demand will increase with an expanding arms program.

At home, many services have been given directly to families in distress. The aged and the young as well as those more able to care for themselves have been helped.

The future holds many uncertainties for all. If the U. S. should be attacked, no doubt the Hampton Roads area might be the object of direct attack. Appomattox would then become a refugee area. Without adequate funds at home, we would be helpless to take care of our share of the job.

The local quota is higher this year. Most of this money stays at home for the use of the Appomattox Chapter for local people. The public is asked to give generously and promptly.
